Grow a butterfly garden

To start your own butterfly garden, firstly find a sunny tranquil space to use.

Position benches and other seating second, and lastly design your plant layout.

For butterfly friendly plants, variety is key! Keep space for seasonal perennials too, to offer nectar for early butterflies in spring, through to autumn. Primroses, forget-me-knots, sweet Williams, ice plants, asters, and flowering ivy are perfect.

Plant pots, traditional long beds, raised beds, or even dedicated a large open area for the plants with gravel pathways, all have great potential to build a custom butterfly garden. The deeper beds are ideal for shrubs and bushes like lavender, butterfly bush, and holly. While the larger open areas and plant pots can take buddleja's, perovskia's, cornflowers, French marigold's, knapweed's, marjoram's, scabious's, purple loosestrife's, and more!

Butterfly's are beautiful, and super helpful in pollinating plants in your garden, all while adding a lovely splash of colour.
